About the Editors

Lily Gardner Feldman is the Harry & Helen Gray Senior Fellow at the American Institute for Contemporary German Studies at Johns Hopkins University, where she directs the Institute’s Society, Culture & Politics Program. From 1978 until 1991, Dr. Gardner Feldman was an Assistant Professor and subsequently an Associate Professor of political science at Tufts University in Boston. She has held research positions at Harvard University’s Center for European Studies and Center for International Affairs, and at Georgetown University’s BMW Center for German and European Studies. Dr. Gardner Feldman has published widely in the U.S. and Europe on international reconciliation, German foreign policy, German-Jewish relations, non-state entities as foreign policy players, and the EU as an international actor. Her latest book is Germany’s Foreign Policy of Reconciliation: From Enmity to Amity (Rowman & Littlefield, 2014).

Raisa Barash is a Senior Research Fellow at the Institute of Sociology, Russian Academy of Sciences, Moscow. She received her PhD in Political Science from Moscow State University in 2010. Her recent research focuses on the issues of multicultural communities, identity and self-determination, ethnic and national subjectivity, civic community and the dynamics of mass consciousness in post-Soviet states.

Samuel Goda works as Assistant Professor and Vice-Dean for Development at the Faculty of International Relations, University of Economics in Bratislava. His main research areas include OSCE related issues, conflict transformation and reconciliation, EU CFSP/CSDP, as well as a regional scope of Central and Eastern Europe and Latin America. Dr. Goda also works as researcher and project manager at the Slovak Foreign Policy Association, dealing mostly with OSCE-related issues, international security and development aid activities in the Republic of Moldova. He is also a representative at the “OSCE Network of Think Tanks and Academic Institutions.” As of 2018, under the Italian OSCE Chairmanship, Samuel became the Special Representative of the OSCE Chairperson-in-Office on Youth and Security.

André Zempelburg is a research assistant at the chair of Religious Studies of the Friedrich-Schiller-University Jena (Germany) and the Jena Center for Reconciliation Studies (JCRS). His current research is on the concept of reconciliation in (Rabbinic) Judaism as a part of the trilateral project “Hearts of Flesh – Not Stone”, funded by the Deutsche Forschungsgemeinschaft (DFG). He is chairman of the association Verein zur Versöhnungsforschung und -praxis (VVV) since its foundation in 2015.